

Misplaced Modifiers:

1. Each week we challenged a different team throughout the year.
2. The girl had long blond hair and beautiful blue eyes with clear skin.
3. With great skill the clay turned smoothly between the potter's hands.
4. As a child my grandmother indulged me, but as a teenager she found me a nuisance.
5. She fell off her bike and broke her arm in two places between 1st and 2nd Streets.
6. But even with the threats, no violence broke out in compliance with Federal Court desegregation rulings.
7. I nearly drove two miles to the store.
8. Kudzu almost acts like a science-fiction monster.
9. The experiment only revealed that the two compounds could not be successfully combined.
10. Considering the failure of the experiment, only further research can yield useful information.
11. To determine whether the two compounds can be successfully combined, the protocol should be evaluated for bias and replicability.

Harry Von Zell: "Gracie, I want you to meet my new girlfriend. She's a wonderful girl: has a beautiful face, weighs 110 pounds."

Gracie Allen: "Oh Harry! I can't wait to meet her! I never saw anyone with 110-pound face before!"

(Later, on meeting the girl)

Gracie: "Harry was wrong about you! You don't have a big fat face at all!"